Mother Love

"The nearest thing to real love is mother love. Tha is why mother love, when it is not selfish love but is true mother love, is the nearest thing to God love, because the true mother love is a continuous pouring of itself out to the child, without any thought of return. It is just, "I love to clothe you; I love to feed you; I love to educate you; I love to give the best to you."

The parent never thinks about a return. True, much parental love is selfish love, but I am not speaking about that. I am speaking of parental love in its truest sense, where the parent has no idea in mind except to be a parent, and that means doing and loving to do with no thought of return." -Joel Goldsmith, The Gift of Love

Love

Letter from Joel to Lorraine Sinkler April 26, 1956

Washington Hotel

Curzon Street

London, England

Dear Lorraine,

Answering your beautiful letter of gratitude. Do you know what love really is? Let me share my unfoldment:

Love is the giving or sharing - with no expectation or desire for return, for reward, for recognition or compensation.

As parents give to a baby - with no sense that a baby can give anything in return.

As the sun and the rain give to the earth.

As trees yield fruit.

When we joy in giving and sharing as an inner gift to the without -
Love is fulfilling Itself.

Love,

Joel
